Knoxville's Community Development Corporation Opens Supportive Housing for Veterans

Knoxville's Community Development Corporation (KCDC) recently opened Liberty Place, a 32-unit permanent supportive housing development for veterans, offering one-bedroom units to veterans who are homeless or at risk of homelessness. The facility includes fully furnished, ADA-accessible units and on-site supportive services, including case management through the HUD-VASH program and the Department of Veterans Affairs. Sustainable features like solar panels and energy-efficient equipment were incorporated through partnerships and soft goods for each unit were provided by additional groups. Read more here.

District of Columbia Housing Authority Celebrates Graduates from Maintenance Apprenticeship Training Program

The District of Columbia Housing Authority (DCHA) recently celebrated 19 graduates of the Maintenance Apprenticeship Training Program (MATP). Over 12 months, participants trained in carpentry, electrical installation, plumbing, and other skills through a mix of classroom instruction, on-the-job training, and professional development. The program, developed in partnership with the DC Department of Employment Services' Project Empowerment, prepares graduates to become Certified Apartment Maintenance Technicians (CAMT).
